COUNTY NAMES NEW ELECTIONS BUREAU DIRECTOR

The Butler County Board of Commissioners has hired Aaron G. Sheasley as the new county Elections Bureau Director. Sheasley, a Cranberry Township resident, will start on July 27.

Sheasley has experience working the polls as the Judge of Elections for one of the Cranberry Township precincts. He is Managing Partner and Director of S.E. Systems & Technology in the township, former Interim Director of Information Technology for Carlow University in Pittsburgh and former Director of Operations & Information Systems for Engineered Systems & Solutions in Pittsburgh.

Butler County Commissioner Leslie Osche, board chairman, said Sheasley was selected for the post due to his background.

“We were fortunate to find someone from our own county who had both the practical experience as a judge of elections along with an extensive technical background,” Commissioner Osche said.

Sheasley said he is eager to begin working for Butler County.

“I’m looking forward to serving the people of Butler County, to ensuring safe and fair elections, and to increasing both voter awareness and engagement,” Sheasley said.

The post has been vacant since April.
