COUNTY INFORMED THERE WILL BE NO CLOSURES OF BARS AND RESTAURANTS

The Butler County Board of Commissioners were informed today Gov. Tom Wolf and the Pennsylvania Department of Health will not be halting seated service at all bars and restaurants due to the novel coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic.

“There’s going to be no orders forthcoming from the governor’s office for Butler County,” said Butler County Commissioner Kim Geyer. “The numbers in Butler County do not support business closures.”

State Department of Health officials earlier this week indicated there would be such a closure.

Butler County Commissioner Kim Geyer stressed the county does not regulate restaurants and bars, so any restrictions, including closures, are mandated at the state level.

“It’s important for the public to know the Butler County Commissioners do not make business closure decisions and would not have endorsed business closures,” Geyer said.
