⁽¹⁾ Employment impacts reflect the total number of jobs created and/or supported by the project. Direct employment represents an estimate of the jobs that will be created by the project. All other jobs represent "spin-off" jobs supported by the project as a result of increased inter-industry spending and new household expenditures.

⁽²⁾ Tax impacts primary reflect the indirect and induced benefits associated with the project. Indirect benefits capture the inter-industry spending that results from a change in final demand while induced benefits capture the industry activity generated by new household income. These "spin-off" tax impacts should not be confused with any new real estate tax rates, which are not estimated by the IMPLAN model.

⁽³⁾ Household expenditures reflect induced effects, i.e. the impacts on all local industries caused by the expenditure of new household income.

⁽⁴⁾ Business expenditures reflect indirect effects, i.e. the purchasing activity of other industries caused by a change in final demand.
